Heavenly Father told him to the the wicked people to repent.

The people were mad at Samuel and did not want to listen to him.

They threw things at him, but nothing hit him, because the Lord protected him

Activity: On the City Wall

The suggested treat was rice crispy treats, because you are going to use them to build a wall for Samuel to stand on. How fun! You can begin by having your child help you build the wall with you, make sure to leave plenty of time for the rice crispys to get cold and hard in the fridge before the activity. Also, before the activity print out these pictures, color and cut them out, you already have a wall so you don't have to use it, or you can place it in front of the wall you make. Set up the story, and go through it again with your child. You can explain things more in depth depending on how old your child is, or what you think he or she can understand. Then you can enjoy eating your "wall"!

Idea for wall originally came from here (Links work on the website)
